MATTHEW 25:1-13

In the Gospel from Matthew, Jesus gives us the parable of the Ten Bridesmaids. The bridegroom is Jesus Christ at the end of time returning in judgement and glory. The bride is His Church. The occasion is the Heavenly Banquet. The sensible bridesmaids are those who have fed and encouraged their faith throughout their lives. Their lamps and flasks are full of the oil of faith. The foolish bridesmaids are those who have neglected their faith and their relationship with the person of Jesus Christ. The oil of faith is low in their lamps and their flasks are empty. The bridegroom is late and comes at an unexpected time. The foolish bridesmaid's lamps are empty of the oil of faith. They ask the sensible bridesmaids to share their oil of faith. The sensible bridesmaids say no. Faith can only be obtained through personal action; you cannot take it from somebody else. The sensible bridesmaids enter the banquet, and the foolish bridesmaids are locked out in the darkness. Jesus does not know them; they have no faith.

The Book of Hebrews tells us that, 'Faith is the assurance of things hoped for and the conviction of things not seen'. Faith is the assurance of a God who loves us and the conviction of eternal life in the happiness of heaven'. We receive the gift of faith at our Baptism. Baptism is the Sacrament of faith. This faith must be nourished and fed otherwise it will die. We become strangers to God.

How do we do this? We feed our faith in prayer; we feed our faith in acts of love and kindness, especially to those most in need; we feed our faith by reading Holy Scripture, in particular the Gospels, where Jesus personally speaks to us; we feed our faith by receiving the sacraments, each one of which is an encounter with the person of Jesus Christ; and most especially in the reception of the Holy Eucharist: the Body and Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ. If we do this, our lamps will be full of the oil of faith. The bridegroom will recognize us and welcome us as friends into the banquet of heaven.
