MARK 9:38-48 In the Gospel from Mark, Jesus tells us, 'if your hand should cause you to sin, cut it off; it is better for you to enter into life crippled, than to have two hands and go to hell, into the fire that cannot be put out'.

It is not fashionable to speak of hell today, but I would be failing in my duty as your pastor, if I said to you that hell does not exist. Jesus tells us that hell exists. The Church teaches that hell exists. Jesus Christ died on the Cross and rose from the dead, in order to grant all the opportunity of eternal life. Jesus does not, however, force us to accept eternal life. Those who reject God in this life cannot expect to spend eternity with God in the next life. They would not want to spend eternity with God. I believe that hell is simply the eternal separation from God.

What are these readings trying to tell us? They tell us that we have received the great gift of the Holy Spirit in baptism. They tell us that we are expected to use the gift of the Holy Spirit in this life by putting God first in our lives and the needs of others – especially those less fortunate than ourselves. They tell us of the great dangers of allowing the attractions of this world and the selfish pursuit of personal self-satisfaction to dominate and control our lives. If we place our hearts on the achievement of earthly rewards, we are in danger of losing the achievement of our eternal lives. In the words of Pope Francis: 'whenever material things, money, worldliness, become the centre of our lives, they take hold of us, they possess us; we lose our very identity as human beings. Too much concern for material things and for the self-satisfaction of me can lead us to lose our memory of God and the needs of others'.

We will be judged by just two things at the end of our lives:

1. Have we loved God with our whole hearts, minds and souls?
2. Have we loved our neighbours as ourselves?

Anything that stops us from loving God with our whole hearts should be cut off from us. If we love God with our whole hearts, we will want to love our neighbours and those in need.
